

Educate yourself about poverty. Read books. Start conversations. Challenge stereotypes.

Give to AVLF, the Atlanta Women's Foundation (AWF), GBPI or any other number of local service providers.

Become a monthly donor to an organization fighting poverty. To donate to AVLF, go to www.avlf.org.

If you are a lawyer, volunteer your time and expertise to AVLF. Represent a tenant seeking repairs – or a victim of domestic violence.

Join the Atlanta Women's Foundation and GBPI's advocacy efforts to increase access to childcare.

Financially support AWF to fund programs and services that move women and girls from poverty to self-sufficiency.

Get involved. Make volunteerism a family tradition.

Stay informed. Follow the Georgia Budget and Policy Institute at www.gbpi.org. Get involved.

Pick one policy issue that could make a positive difference in Katrina's life, write or call your elected representative and ask what she or he is doing to support it, and follow up at least once more to see if she or he followed through on that support.

Provide education and life skills for women and girls: mentor or tutor in after school or financial literacy programs.

Attend a rally to increase the minimum wage. #Fightfor15

The United Way of Metropolitan Atlanta or Hands on Atlanta can connect you to multiple opportunities to give, volunteer and advocate.
www.unitedwayatlanta.org / www.handsonatlanta.org

Tell friends, coworkers, strangers, about this film. Talk about it. Find out more at hbo.com, shriverreport.org and awomansnation.org